

Looking for accreditation and training with the stockbroking and investment advice industry?

SIAA'S RG146 Courses

The Stockbrokers and Investment Advisers Association's (SIAA's) RG146 accredited courses are uniquely designed for those in the securities and derivatives industry. They set the standard that employers, regulators, and the investing public expect from individuals who are employed within this industry, offering training for:

- ✓ those employed in the securities and derivatives industry providing financial product advice in the course of their work (general advice) or who need an understanding of the industry in which they work
- ✓ customer service representatives providing financial product advice in the course of their work
- ✓ Responsible Managers
- ✓ experienced practitioners for CPD purposes.

Courses

- Core 1 – Securities and Managed Investments
- Securities and Managed Investments
- Fundamentals of Securities
- Accredited Derivatives Adviser Level 1
- Accredited Derivatives Adviser Level 2
- Foreign Exchange
- Margin Lending

SIAA also offers courses which meet the requirements for Market Participants in relation to DTR training and maintains the National DTR Register.

What do you need to know?

Core 1 Securities & Managed Investments and Securities and Management Investments courses both include an exam and focus on:

- asset classes and their use in investment portfolios
- investment manager styles and the use of alternative investment strategies and benchmarks
- the benefits and risks associated with the different securities and managed investment products
- the regulatory and taxation issues affecting the use of securities and managed investment products.

Core 1 extends this:

- by covering an introduction to basic techniques for analysing product performance and making investment and trading decisions in relation to product types, and
- it also includes an assignment covering the provision of financial advice so that you understand the difference between general and personal advice for retail investors.

For those only requiring training in securities, without the managed investment component, the Fundamentals of Securities stand-alone course covers the key areas.

DTR Accreditation

Under the ASIC Market Integrity Rules (Securities Markets) 2017 Rule 2.5.2 trading participants must have at least one Designated Trading Representative (DTR). Only DTRs may submit trading messages, unless an automated order processing system is used. DTRs must also comply with the Operating Rules and Procedures of the market into whose trading platform they are submitting messages. There are two National DTR Accreditations available.

- National DTR Cash Equities Accreditation (short name: DTR Cash Equities)
- National DTR Derivatives Accreditation (short name: DTR Derivatives)
